Partnership & Program Development

The Cherokee concept of gadugi—working together for the common good—is at the center of Sixkiller Consulting’s mission. Gadugi is what we help our nonprofit and philanthropic clients achieve through the following strategies:

- Creating public policy platforms to leverage opportunities for thought leadership and revenue
- Developing programs that align with core institutional competencies and growth objectives
- Convening stakeholders for collective impact and building nontraditional coalitions and alliances
- Designing smart philanthropy strategies and effective business plans for nonprofits
- Empowering youth and young leaders through innovative initiatives

About Us

Sixkiller Consulting is a national strategic advisory, public policy, and business development consulting firm based in Washington, DC.

Our team takes an innovative and value-add approach informed by firsthand experience working at the highest levels of government and for national organizations. We provide clients counsel and tactical solutions to advance public policy matters at all levels of government and shape advocacy campaigns; identify market opportunities and strengthen competitive position; expand brand identity and awareness; secure public and private capital; and catalyze stakeholder-driven solutions.

We work with Fortune 500 businesses and industry trade associations, tribal nations and their enterprises, local elected officials and governments, nonprofits, and community-led organizations.
